

Stand Up Against the Employee “Forced” Choice Act

A child flying an airplane is a disaster waiting to happen just as the government dictating the daily operations of a business would be a disaster.

In addition to effectively eliminating a worker’s ability to vote by private ballot in union organizing drives, the binding arbitration provision of the Employee Free Choice Act could result in a government-appointed panel dictating a business’ operations. People who don’t know the business, the employees, or the market would be making decisions that could threaten the business model, eliminate flexibility, and seriously impede a company’s ability to grow and create jobs.

[Organization Name] and the Florida Chamber of Commerce have partnered together to stop this legislation, but we need your help.

Help fight this legislation by joining the Floridians for a Democratic Workplace Coalition or by learning more about the Employee Free Choice Act by visiting www.floridiansforademocraticworkplace.org.